Setting Employees Up to Succeed

Security America celebrated our 43rd year in business in June. We have been blessed to have great employees, clients, vendors, and board members over those years. We continue to set employees up to succeed starting Day 1 with our company.

Like many others who have been promoted, I worked as a security officer before moving up the organization to eventually my current position as President. Even before I was old enough to be a security officer, I was working in the office organizing the uniform room, filing, and cleaning the office. At Security America, we look to find employees that have ambition and want to be developed with our company. Sometimes that can lead to other careers which is alright as we want to learn and grow with you in whatever your best path is.

We want to continue building a strong company culture by hiring the right employees through our screening process and giving them the right training for their job. We encourage feedback from our employees and clients to continue making us better overall. Every company has flaws and makes mistakes, but we want to grow from ours. Coaching from your managers and supervisors should be used as useful feedback to continue to develop as an employee. We encourage communication to your supervisor and managers what you need to continue your success and our success.

Let's GROW and CELEBRATE our wins together!

It Starts With You

Every strong shift, satisfied client, and safe environment starts with how you show up. From your uniform to your attitude. The example you set makes a difference.
